

The proposed device for measuring liquid flow velocity contains a drop-shaped casing, which is equipped with outside stabilizing surfaces, and inclinometers, which are installed in the casing. The casing is suspended on a wire with a drop-shaped cross-section.