

Mechanism for cleaning of the internal surface of the tank boiler containing an axle mounted with possibility of rotation and connected with it and, at least, one end brush with the facility of its pressing to the surface of cleaning connected with said axle. The axle is connected to the mechanism of twisting having axially displaced spring plates, which with the help of hingedly attached levers are connected with the central post, and through it - with the fast-rotating fist connected to the electric drive.