

The method for obtaining multifunctional oxygen-containing substances comprises the oxidation of the sunflower oil or the rape-seed oil with oxygen of the air in the presence of potassium bichromate at the elevated temperature.