

A device for liquid atomization by gas contains a housing, channels of liquid supply, a mixing chamber, means of tangential gas supply, an outlet nozzle and a porous container. The porous container is mounted coaxially relative to the housing in such a manner that the open side is connected with the outlet nozzle.