

An armored panel has ceramic plates, a base made of layered composite plastic and an outer layer made of soaked with polymer binding agent tissue. Ceramic plates are by the back sides joining the base through foamed intermediate layer of the binding substance of the base of elastomers, and the sides are joining each other without gaps or with gaps not larger than 0.25 mm.