

The present invention relates to medicine namely to method for determining causes of chronic pelvic pain syndrome associated with urology, specifically the cause that is associated with inflammation of the bulbourethral glands.