

The method for information recording to a record-carrying material provides for specimen information record jointly with information signals in selected carrier regions specifying at least one parameter and depending on record carrier parameters and having an effect on quality of recorded information specimens. The regions of calibration is selected on the record carrier from preset regions where test articles for various parameter set is recorded and the optimal parameter set is defined with due account for recorded test articles while their recording.