

The invention relates to tanning industry, in particular, to the technology for obtaining of protein substances from leather waste of chromium tanning.

A method provides for the treatment of leather waste, preferably, chromium cuttings, with sulphuric acid in several stages.