

Invention relates to the chemical-pharmaceutical and medical industry, especially - to the methods of obtaining the carbonic sorbents of medical purpose, which can be used for detoxication of the organism of sick and poisoned people both as oral preparations –enterosorbents and hemosorbents of extracorporeal (out of organism) use. Method includes the demineralization of activated carbon by solution of hydrochloric acid at boiling, dust removal, ionic balancing and packaging.