

The device comprises a switchboard, one terminal being connected to one starting winding output, the other terminal being connected to one working motor winding output and with the first clamp for connection to the electric power supply, another switchboard output is connected with the second clamp for connection to the electric power supply and a switchboard controller.