

The machine with a large quantity of beetle plates for softening and strengthening of industrial leather comprises driving means, provided with synchronization means, made with a possibility of alignment of oscillation frequency of adjacent movable plates. The invention relates to the treatment of industrial leather.