

The present invention relates to a method of installing a plurality of ignition coils on an engine block, and an electrical power supply assembly for employing this method. The method includes molding a housing from an electrically insulating material. The housing having a plurality of receptacles for the coils and including inserts for attachment of the housing to the engine block.