

The invention relates to the tuyere devices for introduction of mediums into the melt as well as an operating procedure of this tuyere device. The aim of the invention is production of the tuyere device for introduction of mediums into the melt, which allows to increase tenure of employment for the device, to shorten down time and to simplify carrying out of work in servicing.