

The invention relates to the methods of processing the source material, containing, at least, two different thermoplastic polymers or copolymers, into uniform thermoplastic material.