

The remote dial telephony comprises a distance dialing set consisting of a relay translator, a voice-frequency dialing generator, and call and a voice-frequency dialing receiver and a call. The equipment is provided in addition for a device connected to an exchange line in conjunction with telefax and a telephone set and consisting of an output transformer. The primary transformer winding is included to the exchange line and the secondary winding is connected to the transformer output. The generator is connected to a time relay an the supply stabilizer and the general supply is connected to the circuit via a transistor switch.