

A device for magnetotherapy massage comprises a driving oscillator for mechanical vibrations as a solenoid and chamber made of unmagnetic material and placed into the solenoid with the massaging elements made of magnetic-hard material magnetized to satiation. Each massaging element is covered by unmagnetic material. The invention relates to the medical equipment, to the devices for magnetotherapy massage.