

Netted web is formed by interweaving basic and weft thermo-stable threads made of silicate and mineral threads. Basic threads are threads made of silicate and mineral fiber and weft threads are made of silicate or mineral threads. The invention relates to textile industry, to production of glass web with rare structure that are used mostly as weaved fillings for production of pre-pregs (materials that are preliminarily soaked with binding agent) and for other purposes of national economy.