

A method for processing the agricultural wastes comprises the fermentation of the agricultural wastes generating biogas. The fermented wastes are supplied to the reactor for the aeration by the biogas generated upon fermentation. The invention relates to the methods for manufacturing the fertilizers and the biogas from the wastes of the animal husbandry and poultry breeding.