

The invention relates to the field of heat-power engineering. The method includes collection of liquid radioactive wastes, concentration and their vitrification. The liquid radioactive wastes before vitrification are subject to cleaning from radionuclides.