

Invention relates to machine building and it is intended for automation of the processes of loading of processing and assembly-line technological equipment by thin-walled cylindrical component of the type of cases, containers, bushings.

Rotary holder contains the disk with adjusting elements installed with the aid of the nave on the axis, the mechanisms of discrete rotation and angular fixation located on common base.