

A device for storage of sterile medical instruments comprises a support, on which housing is placed. The housing has lid pivotable attached to it and bactericidal lamp placed into it. The housing is equipped with a net for the location of instrument, the lamp is placed in upper housing part, and the lid is made with possibility of opening into the housing. The invention relates to the medical equipment and may be used for storage of the preliminary sterilized medical instruments.