

The invention relates to the sport equipment, namely to the spear. The spear for track and field athletics consists of the spear-head, the shaft with the internal cavity designed as a tubular construction of the reinforcing fibers and the polymer matrix, and the taping. The internal cavity of the shaft contains the filling agent. The tubular construction is designed as a single whole.