

Unit of hinge for door and elements of case of vehicle includes connected to each other links and stepped bushing. Bushing is equipped with rigidly connected to it ring-like element with console tail element. The invention relates to general machine-building, in particular to arrangement of hinges for doors of transportation means.