

The training spear for track and field athletics consists of the spike and the handle with the internal cavity and the taping. The handle is dismountable with the connector in the middle part where the weights are loaded inside. The invention relates to the throwing sport objects for track and field athletics.