

Level meter has floater installed on vertical guides and kinematically connected with measuring strip to barrel that is mechanically connected to drive motor, indicator block fixed at outer side of vessel and floater stopper. The stopper is arranged as wedge fixed on measuring strip, and two rollers installed on floater with possibility of displacement of last ones in horizontal direction. The invention relates to units for measurement of liquid level, mostly of inflammable ones in technological vessels.