

A method for ion-exchange purification of solutions from nonferrous metals ions by passing thereof through ion-exchange resins. Passing-through is performed through the mixture of amino-carboxyl cationite and low basic anionite of polymerization type taken at a ratio of $(0.5 - 1.5): 1$, respectively.