

Appliance for measurement of electric conductivity of boiler and/or feeding water is equipped with convective heat exchanger installed in parallel to upward channel of conductometric indicator between blast and shutoff valves. The invention relates to systems for control of parameters of phosphate-blasting mode of power boiler and blasting mode of steam generator of NPP and reagent dosing to feeding water.