

The invention relates to ferrous metallurgy, in particular, to sintering production. A charge contains ore material, flux, fuel and fine-dispersed burned magnesia powders, at that charge components.