

Invention relates to metallurgy of steel, namely to the submelting heat-insulating mixtures. The heat-insulating mixture includes expanded pearlite and carbon-containing material. As carbon-containing material it contains production wastes of graphitized electrodes.