

Inventions relate to the methods of automatic control of operation of deslimers and can be used for concentration of minerals in ore-dressing, chemical and other branches of industry for control of operation of thickeners, deslimers, hydraulic classifiers, hydraulic sorters and sumps.

The method includes determination of the value, which characterizes the condensed product, and the change of the flow area of condensed product.