

The invention relates to mechanical transport, in particular to devices for filling with oil carters of reducers, carters of gear boxes, wheel reducers and can be used for movable units of rail transport. Portable device has discharge vessel connected to output pipeline through dozing chamber arranged as cylinder separated with piston into two cavities one of which is connected to discharge vessel, and the other one – is connected to source of compressed air.