

The invention relates to electrical engineering and can be used for glow-discharge retubing in electrical supply networks, in stacking railway transportation, alighting platforms, crossroads and stations as well as in operating departments.

The device comprises a stick, a slug mounted on the upper stick end with opportunity of radial rotation, a pair of spring-loaded grippers for lamp bulbs fixed on the slug and the second gripper for lighting fittings.