

Invention relates to the technology of the production of fiber plastic rod for inking devices of machine record and recording means.

Armored lining contains lining elements and point of attachment.