

The invention relates to the dentistry. The device contains the case with the doors and the chamber with the source of the irradiation with the working elements, the shutter and the table, inside. The device contains also the drive for the displacement of the working elements designed as the spring mechanism connected to the working elements and one or two pushers attached to the doors.