

The invention relates to electrical machine building in particular to device for verification of turn-to-turn short-circuits in electric machines.

The device comprises an electromagnetic induction sensor mounted in an entrefer, a display unit, an analog switch unit and peak detector unit connected in series, adder unit, a differentiating amplifier and a comparator.