

The invention relates to decorative working surfaces and can be used at manufacturing stencils by sand blasting or hydroabrasive treatment. A method includes formation of cuts and/or openings therein corresponding to an image being reproduced and joining layers of stencil to each other.