

The invention relates to agricultural production, in particular to fodders production and can be used for inhibiting anti-nutrient substances in soya beans at production high-energetic fodders for farm animals. A method includes shredding wet fodder-grain corn, allocation in storage, compaction and sealing.