

The invention relates to the medical microbiology.

The method provides for location the equal in size substrates with antibiotics on some distance one from another on the surface of solid nutrition medium, inoculated with the culture of microorganisms, incubation and the eduction of the character of interaction of the zones of arrest of development of the culture between the pairs of substrates with antibiotics, which shows the presence or absence of combined activity.