

The invention relates to the fire-fighting equipment, in particular to the manual fire extinguishers, intended for the fire extinguishing of L class. The fire extinguisher has a gas generator, which comprises a housing with input device and gas generating element, located in this housing.