

The invention relates to metallurgical industry, in particular to devices for mechanization of charge bulk materials into the metallurgical installations and it can be used for the charge of scrap-metal, in particular of steel cuttings, into a mixer. A device contains a body, journals under the hooks of main and auxiliary hoists of the charging crane, container, and also the mechanism, holding container in the device.