

The invention relates to carriers of the information. The microresonance circuit includes microcontainer and substance - carrier with the information, noted in it, about wave performances of tested objects. As the substance - carrier of the information, the solid, mainly fusible substances are used.