

The invention relates to the foundry engineering, in particular, to the foundry equipment for centrifugal casting of profile billets, for example, cylinder sleeves of engines into sectional chill molds with thermal insulation coating. An automation line contains an annular conveyor with a rotary table and an intermittent drive catch, coupled centrifugal machines located on the table.