

The invention relates to electrical engineering and can be used for stabilized DC voltage supply of personal computers, microcomputers, computer equipment and other communications electronics equipment.

The source comprises a filter-mains rectifier and an additional electric power supply, the inputs being connected to power system input, an additional voltage stabilizer.