

The invention relates to the production of articles made of mixtures, in particular, to the production of construction articles by pressing method. A pressing method includes filling of multiple mold, closing of mold with subsequent application to it of bilateral pressing force.