

The invention relates to the branch of low-voltage apparatus building and can be used in automatic breakers or contactors.

The non-arcking electric contact is arranged as a metal ceramic composition consisting of one or several metals and comprises a conditioner material. The metal or its oxygen-containing compounds are inserted as the conditioner material.