

The invention relates to machine building, namely to the hauling chains of the dual-duty overhead conveyors. A double-hinged leaf chain includes links with track rollers fastened on axles of plates and connected by joining elements with these links other links with guiding rollers fastened on the corresponding plate axles.