

An invention relates to the processes for the preparation of granulated products, for example, for the obtaining of granulated organo-mineral fertilizers and can be used in chemical and other branches of industry. The process consists in that nitrogen, phosphorus and potash fertilizers, deoxidizing substances, binding and stimulating additives are mixed, after that granulated and dried.