

The invention relates to metal-working industry, in particular to refining of metalwares from the scale. A method includes alkali heating with alternating magnetic field and disposing into the alkali melt of metalwares.