

Method is proposed for making permeable elements of control leakages on basis of quartz capillaries that are laid to hollow body and fixed with filling gap with vacuum-dense material. Quartz capillary is laid to glass body and fixed with melting body in zone of installation of capillary till filling gap with material of the body.