

The invention relates to building constructions, more particularly to metal beams that are used as bend elements of buildings and constructions, mostly operating on loads applied to those eccentrically. Pre-fabricated beam includes two same profiles with bends at ends, those have bosses and depressions corresponding to each other that interact at connection of profiles with formation of beam with double wall and hollow shelves.